

HYPP TEST ORDER FORM

Hyperkalemic Periodic Paralysis (HYPP) is an inherited disease of the muscle, which is caused by a genetic defect. This condition is characterized by sporadic episodes of muscle tremors (shaking or trembling), weakness and/or collapse or paralysis. Having HYPP results on file will prevent offspring of HYPP negative sires or dams from having to be tested. All owners are strongly encouraged to test horses who have unknown lineage or horses that are related to the Quarter Horse. Impressive.

HYPP testing is simple and only requires 30-40 hairs to be removed, by the roots, from the mane or tail of the horse. For young foals, it is best to pull hair from the head of the tail. After testing is completed, the results will be returned to HH and we will then provide you with a copy of the results for your records. The status of HYPP testing, or lack of testing, will be noted on the registration papers for horses with unknown lineage or horses related to Impressive.
